AUTHORITY TO EFFECT FORFEITURE: ADDITIONAL SECURITY SERVICES

If you own any property/land, you can face claims for compensation if a member of the public suffers an injury whilst on it, even if the property/land doesn't have public access. That means whatever type of property/land you own - whether it's a small field or large estate, a private car park in town or a sports field - the landlord must ensure a suitable level of liability insurance is in place at all times.

Remember - legally the onus is on the landlord to protect the public from injury. That means that even if someone has an accident whilst trespassing, they can make a claim against the landlord.
